

Solo Aging Workshop

Financial Wellbeing for Solo Agers

Financial security is a real concern for many Solo Aging women. Good financial health enables choice and helps preserve independence. Did you know, financial decision-making ability peaks at approximately age 53, and then declines into older adulthood? Without adult children or a spouse or partner, planning for important decisions and support is critical to a solo ager's financial security. Come join Senior Concerns' Finance Chair Veronica "Ronnie" Amici as she walks us through the components of solid financial planning.
